ENDED IN A DRAW.

Bonner and Finnegan Went the Limit.
Finnegan's Countering Offset Bonner's Leads—Large Crowd Saw It.

The boxing contest between Jack Bonner, of Newark, N. J., and John Finnegan, of Pittsburgh, at the Metropolitan club last night, went the limit of twenty rounds, and was declared a draw. It was a pretty battle, viewed in some lights, but not the rattling one expected. This is explained because the "clean break" rule prevailed, and not the straight Marquis of Queensbury rules, which allow punching with one arm free, the only rules that big men should fight under, and the rules that govern all heavyweight bouts elsewhere. The Metropolitan club announced that hereafter the one arm free rules will prevail.

The men met at catchweights, Bonner weighing 165 pounds, and Finnegan close to that weight. Bonner did nearly all the leading, but he didn't care to mix it with Finnegan, who has vastly improved in the last year. He used both hands nicely in countering, and he had swings in his sleeve that were dangerous. They did the long range act, with little exciting mixing, but this would have been done away with under the straight Marquis of Queensbury rules, and had they governed it wouldn't have gone the limit. Bonner wanted this style, but Finnegan refused, on the suggestion of his trainer, Paddy Sheehan. There was a large and lively crowd, which enjoyed the affair, and the decision was received without dissent.

Bonner's handlers were Eddie Gardner, George Nau and Crad Morgan, of this city. Finnegan's were Paddy Sheehan and Frank Sutton, of Pittsburgh. Referee P. F. Murphy announced that the men would break clean.

In the first round Bonner assumed the offensive, and his first light leads fell short. Finnegan countered nicely with his right. He showed up nicely in a short exchange. The round was spent in each feeling the other out.

There was more long range work in the second, both playing for the body. Bonner's leads with his left were met with right counters over the heart. The next round was a little livelier. Finnegan finding the jaw hard twice. They did lots of fiddling.

They clashed considerably faster in the fourth, with honors even. Finnegan surprised his friends by his good use of both hands.

Bonner's system of offense worried John not a little in the fifth. Finnegan's leg work showing up poorly.

In the next round Bonner tried to force matters, and he jabbed frequently, sometimes rather low. Finnegan generally returned with a straight right to breast.

Bonner's jab brought the blood from Finnegan's cheek bone in the seventh, and he jabbed John's head back.

The easterner's foot work was the shiftest ever seen in the next round. He dodged in and out and around his opponent, directing his attention to Finnegan's face, but he was too foxy to risk Finnegan's swings.

The ninth round was the most exciting so far, and both men shared in the punishment. Finnegan warmed up to the pace in reassuring style.

Bonner ripped left into the body and face in the next skirmish, and had Finnegan in trouble until they clinched at the ropes. They closed in an exchange. Bonner was as cool as the outset.

His right to the body in the eleventh was a stunner, and he followed it with more to the same place. Finnegan's returns being vicious.

The twelfth round found Finnegan in better shape. It was comparatively tame.

The honors were about even in the exchanges in the succeeding round, Finnegan, encouraged by his rosters, taking a hand at forcing matters.

In the next he resumed his defensive tactics. In backing away Bonner was pushed to the ropes on all four. Finnegan rushed when he arose, to little effect.

Finnegan countered better on Jack's leads in the fifteenth, and there was steam in his punches.

His rushes were good in the following round, but Jack had a few jabs for Finnegan's eye. Bonner had a boil on his neck, which Finnegan didn't seem to disturb.

John threw in a stiff left upper cut over Bonner's heart in the seventeenth and otherwise closed in strong. He was fighting cooler now than in the earlier rounds. Still the work was unexpectedly tame.

There was a change in the eighteenth. Just after Bonner swung a nifty left on the jaw, Finnegan threw a left hook on the stomach that made Bonner wince. He staggered out into the middle of the ring with his eyes appealing to Murphy as if the blow was foul. Finnegan rushed him after this, but Bonner escaped further danger. It looked for awhile as if he was a goner.

There were cries for Finnegan to "wade into him," as they came together in the next round. But they followed the prevailing long range tactics, and there were cries to "fight." Bonner led a swift left on the jaw, and later put left on the body. Neither cared to mix it, however. Bonner complained of Finnegan hitting low in an exchange at the gong.

The final round found both strong. Finnegan's lips and eye showed the journey, and Bonner, with no marks, was puffing. There was another claim of foul from Bonner after an exchange, and Finnegan apologized by offering his hand, which Jack shook. They sparred most of the round. Jack landed several nice ones on the stomach, and John returned them. The decision of draw was cheered.

The preliminary lasted only four rounds. John Porter, of Bellaire, was the winner over Bill Birch, of Pittsburgh. As usual in these affairs, when the participants are husky colored gentlemen, there was fun galore for the crowd. The Pittsburgher had imbibed too freely before hand, and he wanted to quit frequently. He took advantage of the chance when he was flopped to the floor, and he was roundly hissed for trying to crawl through the ropes.

A Coming Bout.

On Saturday evening, November 25, the Drovers' Home Athletic Club will present an attractive card to the admirers of pugilism. The principal bout will be twenty rounds between Eddie Gardner, of this city, and Mike Tunney, of Pittsburgh. Tunney is one of the Smoky City's most promising lightweights, while Gardner's good record is well known here. The action of Saturday night for the contest will doubtless prove a popular one.

Gardner and Hamilton To-night.

Oscar Gardner will try conclusions with Jack Hamilton, in New York to-night, and will make a desperate effort to regain his lost laurels. The sporting world was surprised at Hamilton's beating him several weeks ago, and it is inclined to think Gardner has gone back. To-night's result should partly determine this.

BOUND AND ROBBED.

Burglars Resort to Barbarous Cruelty in Fayette County, Pa.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 13.—The residence of Isaac P. Conn, on the Cheat river, was robbed Sunday night. Conn and his wife, who are over sixty years of age, with their hired man, John Bixler, were bound and forced to undergo brutal treatment for the two hours that the burglars remained in the house. The raid yielded the burglars about $110 in cash, a gold watch and some other booty.

This did not satisfy them. They had come after the $1,500 which they supposed Conn had received as the first payment on his coal lands, which he recently sold. Conn had not got any of the money yet, and told the intruders so, but they did not believe him, and resorted to all sorts of brutal treatment to make him yield the treasure. Twice he was stood up as a target and given so many seconds to confess. Revolvers were rubbed over his head and aimed at his temple. One fellow took a razor and holding back Conn's head, made a movement as though he would cut his throat. The old man was so faint from cold and fright that he had to be given water to revive him to make him sensible to their treatment. After the burglars left Mrs. Conn liberated herself by untying the knots with her teeth and then cut the other victims loose.

It is so entirely different from soaps made by the old methods, that it is not for the beautiful, creamy lather, one would doubt that they were using soap of any description. There is no soapy smell which always follows the use of the average toilet articles; no overpowering perfume such as is used in the higher grades and which notifies each passerby that you have just taken a bath, or have some skin disease which you are trying to cure with a medicinal soap. Hyomei Skin Soap is Nature's own skin purifier. No artificial means or ingredients are used. No smarting of the eyes or tender skin results from its use. Instead, the skin is thoroughly cleansed and invigorated; all disease germs are destroyed; every pore is opened and all obstructions to perfect circulation removed.
